THE great sales of the Columbian Oil, since it has been brought the public, prove its intrinsic vais a pleasing foreboding of what to expect from its more exten-

interesting certificates might be ed, testifying to the great value of Columbian Oil, but we have prefer-ing but few, wishing to rest more merits of the medicine, than on e produced by certificates from however respectable.

Following are among the complaints ch the Columbian Oil has been very efficacious, viz. rheumatism, gout, pains in any part of y, but more particularly of the breast; asthma, plethoric, in-colds, coughs, whooping cough, of the eye and eye lids, toothache, and deafness, chronic external and internal bruises, and flesh wounds, old sores, ulcers, scalds, burns, mumps, cy-or flux, croop, quincy, diphthery, summer complaint of children,
ion, loss of appetite, nervous debilities, mercurial diseases, especially those cases where the system has argued with mercury for some cone time, and in those excruciating subsequent to its too great use and
e. Herpes, or diseases of the skin as ring worms, tetters, scald stiffness of joints and limbs, ague and fever, cholera morbus,
gleet, obstructed urine, scurvy,
almost all cases of a general or lo-

NOTICE.

The inhabitants of Alexandria will take notice that the subscribers have been appointed assessors for the present year, agreeably to the laws of the corporation.

The said assessors shall, immediately after their appointment proceed to value the house and lots within the limits of the corporation, and to demand from the masters and mistresses of every family, of all male tytheables belonging to states, that half past 12, A. M. he observed a number of canoes alongside, both vessels, but that from the friendly terms he was on with the chiefs and the natives—he had no suspicion of any design against the vessels, both of which were provided with boarding nets, thro' the interstices of which they battered their commodities with the Islanders. The Trial's crew were down at dinner.

Mr. Hovell was on the quarter deck, folding a mat with a friendly chief, the latter on some signal supposed to have been given by the former, sprang upon Mr. Hovell with his club, and struck him on the back of the head, he reeled half stunned, a second blow was aimed at him, which he avoided by rushing forward and precipitating down the fore-castle hatchway. The assailants now crowded upon the upper deck, of which they had obtained complete possession, while several who had intruded themselves between decks were opposed by the people and killed.—Those above tried to ship the main hatch, in order to shut the crew below, but to prevent this two men were stationed at the hatchway, who kept them off with their muskets.

Their numbers increased, and a rush was momentarily expected. A constant fire was kept up from below, and the natives crowded all on the quarter deck to keep clear of the firing upon the hatchway. The cabin sky light afforded an opportunity of firing upon them there, the occasion was embraced, and two discharged drove them off the quarter deck.

They were astonished and confounded at the unexpected attack through the skylight, which was fatal to several; they ran forward, still determined, however, to persist in their attempt of capturing the vessel.

In passing forward they again were fired at from the hatchway; but at this critical moment, arrived Jacky Warry, a native who had before belonged to the Trial, and by his directions to cut the cables of the two vessels, the crew were reduced to the last extremity. They soon drifted ashore, and the assailants, to avoid the firing, crowded in and about the long boat. All appeared lost; yet to avoid the horrors of falling alive into the hands of the assailants, the crew came to the resolution of blowing the vessel up, and involving their enemies in their own destruction.—Desperation redoubled exertion, and a steady discharge of seven muskets at once volley drove them overboard, and thus the crew regained the deck, of which the enemy had possession of four hours.

They now saw the Brothers within a half a cable's length also a ground, with upwards of one hundred natives on the deck. The Trial's swivels were now employed in aid of her musketry, and soon cleared her. Mr. Burnett and his people regained the deck of the Brothers, from whence they also had been driven, and a joint fire was kept up as long as the natives were within its reach, which did considerable execution.

Mr. Burnett's report of the affair states, that at half past twelve o'clock he heard a shout from the Trial and immediately his own decks were crowded with natives who had been previously alongside his vessel, that he was instantly aware of the intended assault, and seizing a musket, shot one of the most forward. Mr. John O'Neal mate of the vessel, and a native of New South Wales, for some time defended Mr. Burnett against the attacks of several adversaries, with an empty musket; he was himself attacked, and fell overpowered by numbers. Thomas Hayes was thrown wounded into a canoe, and killed on the shore. Joseph Marsden and Geo. Hallogan, the former wounded jumped overboard, and were protected by a chief's wife; the latter rejoined the vessel, and supposes Marsden who did not return to be still alive.

NEW SOUTH WHALES

Dreadful Massacre.—A vessel named the Brothers brings a melancholy account of the massacre of several of her's and the Trial's crew, by the New Zealanders, at Trial Harbour, at the estimated difference of 150 miles S. E. of the Missionary Station at the Bay of Islands, being between the River Thames and Mercury Bay. The Trial sailed from the Sidney on the 23d of May, for the Marquesas, intending to call at New Zealand, and there join the Brothers, which had a few days previously taken her departure for that place, chiefly for the purpose of collecting flax. They remained a month at the Bay of Islands, and from thence adopted a south easterly course, trading with the natives as they went along. Making a short stay at a harbour which did not appear to have before frequented by any Europeans, they named it Trial Harbour, and received very friendly treatment with a promise of having a quantity of flax provided against the return of the vessel.—They went towards Cook's Straits, and after running down a considerable extent of coast, returned to Trial harbour, which proved a scene of carnage. The natives appeared no less friendly than before, but not having procured the flax according to their promise, Mr. Hovell and Mr. Burnett prepared for quitting the place. They designed sailing thence on Monday 21st of August, but were attacked on the noon of the preceding day, and the decks of both vessels taken possession of by an immense number of the natives.

Mr. Hovell's account of the transaction states, that half past 12, A. M. he observed a number of canoes alongside, both vessels, but that from the friendly terms he was on with the chiefs and the natives—he had no suspicion of any design against the vessels, both of which were provided with boarding nets, thro' the interstices of which they battered their commodities with the Islanders. The Trial's crew were down at dinner.

Mr. Hovell was on the quarter deck, folding a mat with a friendly chief, the latter on some signal supposed to have been given by the former, sprang upon Mr. Hovell with his club, and struck him on the back of the head, he reeled half stunned, a second blow was aimed at him, which he avoided by rushing forward and precipitating down the fore-castle hatchway. The assailants now crowded upon the upper deck, of which they had obtained complete possession, while several who had intruded themselves between decks were opposed by the people and killed.—Those above tried to ship the main hatch, in order to shut the crew below, but to prevent this two men were stationed at the hatchway, who kept them off with their muskets.

Hallogan, the former wounded jumped overboard, and were protected by a chief's wife; the latter rejoined the vessel, and supposes Marsden who did not return to be still alive.

William Morgan, a boy, was wounded, as was also Mr. Burnett, though not badly; and the next morning the two seamen who had been unfortunately killed on board the Brothers were interred. On board the Brothers were killed Matthew Jackson, an European, and Tetia a Pomoteo native; and Christopher Harper, wounded.

KINGDOM OF HAYTI.

PROCLAMATION. THE KING TO THE HAYTIANS.

HAYTIANS!

Liberty! Independence! Honor! Country! these words be ever graven on our hearts! For blessings such as these, we have valiantly fought during seven and twenty years,—for these we have submitted to the noblest, the most unbounded sacrifices—and in defence of them, we are ready to conquer or to die!

HAYTIANS! This is the day, forever memorable, on which, by our courage and perseverance, we founded the independence of our country, after having delivered it from the yoke of a barbarous bondage! May this day, of eternal memory, be forever to us and our posterity, a day of glory, of happiness and rejoicing!

After having offered up our thanks-giving to the Almighty for the benefit he has vouchsafed unto us, our people and our family, the first desire of our hearts is to convey our satisfaction, our sincere thanks and the expression of our regard to the general officers, sub officers and privates, of the land and sea forces, to the public functionaries, civil and military, for the fresh zeal and fidelity they have displayed towards our person as well as for the general good of our Kingdom—and we hope for a continuation of their efforts.

According to the custom we have invariably observed at this period, we shall lay before you a succinct exposition of the situation of the Kingdom and of our views regarding its future prosperity.

It is with peculiar satisfaction we are enabled to announce, that our political and commercial relations with the various powers gradually improve, and that with the advance of time we appear to become more advantageously known to them all.

The augmentation of our commerce necessarily gives rise to the improved cultivation of our soil, the productions of which supply that that commerce with the means of barter. We recommend our cultivators to accelerate and extend their prosperous labours, a constant motive for which exists in the lucrative disposal of their several commodities. We will neglect nothing that can tend to favor these two branches of the national wealth.

The French Cabinet has again renewed this year its ineffectual projects. Force cannot intimidate us; threats carry no weight with them, and we are not to be cajoled. Palliative means were sought to be employed in order to effect in time, the reduction of our country to a state of slavery. The propositions of this cabinet having been made to us in a form unusual, contrary to our accustomed institutions, and insulting to a brave and generous people who had conquered their independence, they were rejected with indignation.

According to all the received principles of the law of nature and of nations, it is not competent for one country to produce to another the renunciation of its independent rights, to submit to the yoke of the other.

Should our enemies come to attack us, the Supreme Arbitrator of the Universe, who hath placed in our hands the means of asserting and maintaining our independence, will be our righteous judge.

HAYTIANS! The independence of our country, founded on the general will of the people, every day tends more and more to consolidate and strengthen our resources so that we have the firmest guarantee against the odious pretensions of France, but political institutions, however perfect ought not to be our sole guarantee; it is by reforming our manners, our customs and our habits, by changing altogether whatever we may have retained of French character, by discarding in time every tongue we speak, that we shall at length succeed in sapping at Hayti. French influence to its very source; then shall we have made to disappear the last vestiges of that germ of corruption still existing among us. It is by preserving and cherishing assiduously in our minds public spirit, accompanied by that national hatred we have vowed to France and its government, that we may flatter ourselves in having secured to us and our posterity a preservative against the machinations of a tyrannical country, those oppressions and whose cruelties we never can forget.

Our attention then has been particularly directed towards public instructions, as the most effectual means of reforming and polishing the manners of a people, and acquiring to it a national character: we have thought proper to appoint a board of public instruction, to found a Royal College, and to direct the establishment of National Schools, in every town and village of the Kingdom.

The latter will commence by disseminating the primary rudiments of knowledge, and experience satisfactorily evinces, after the success of those National Schools already in operation in the capital, and the progress we have observed in the young pupils, that our just hopes are becoming realized.

Impressed with these ideas, we have been desirous of favouring those professors and artists who visit us for the purpose of devoting themselves to the instruction of youth.—It is essential to the public welfare, that a regular system of national education should be organized; as there are laws for man-kind, so should there be for youth; it is from the first moment of existence that we ought to learn how to merit that exultation, and from that moment the exercise of our duties should commence. It is not enough therefore to tell mankind to be virtuous; we must teach them moreover, how to become so, and to render them good citizens, instruction must be begun in infancy. From our national establishment will proceed young men qualified by their attainments and skill to assert their claims to merit, too long despised by our enemies; from the light of knowledge will be disseminated over the mass of the population, and fresh incentives will arise in every breast to appreciate their duties and to love their country; the moral virtues that distinguished civilized man, will take the place of ignorance, and that depravity of manners, which is the unhappy consequence of a barbarous slavery!

HAYTIANS! The eyes of the world are upon us; our friends and our foes observe us; we have to justify the assertions of the one, to combat and dispel the calumnies of the other; and finally we have to overcome the odious prejudices that have existed for ages against us. It is time that the cause of truth should triumph over that of falsity and error; it is time that we should demonstrate to the world, that our faculties only need cultivation, and that reason, wisdom and prudence are our guides.

HAYTIANS! Remember on this memorable day the period when we combated our oppressors wandering in the woods, a prey to all privations. Each rivalled the other in ardour to overcome those tyrants.—Harmony—union—a happy concert of valour, of energy and unanimity, presided nevertheless, in all our efforts; now, that we have crowned the great work of our Independence, let us enjoy the precious blessing with the happiness that results from it; may the ties of union and fraternity more closely ally us, and we shall present to the world a spectacle of generous liberty: of a nation firm in the defence of its rights, its liberty and independence!

Given in our Royal Palace of Sans Souci, the 1st of Jan, 1807. Anno 14th of the Independence, and of our Reign the sixth.

HENRY.

PRESUMPTION PUNISHED.

Extract from the Journal of a Traveller, on a late tour to Switzerland and through Germany.

When the following day I passed through Laufenburg, I left my carriage and walked over the bridge in company with a man of the place, who seeing me look with great attention at the Rhine, boasting through the arches over a bed of rocks, said to me, pointing with his hand to a sharp angle, "there the two English Lords were swallowed." This was in fact, the place where a few months ago, Lord M—, and Mr. B—, made so deplorable an end. When one sees the rapid and deep course of the Rhine at this place, dashing its waters through a narrow bed of rocks, presenting for three hundred yards acute and sharp wind ing angles, it is not easy to believe that so desperate an attempt would have been hazarded as that which cost these unfortunate gentlemen their lives. They were travellers; the beauty of the country tempted them to stop for a few days at Laufenburg. The novelty and danger of this enterprise tempted navigation excited in them the wish to do what other people deemed impossible. The moment their idea was known, it was strongly opposed; a d the opposition only served to confirm them in their purpose. They proceeded, however, with some caution. They first pushed an empty boat into the stream, and unfortunately for them, and incredibly as it appeared to the spectators, who had crowded both sides of the Rhine to see this experiment, the boat went through undamaged. This success, achieved in the presence of five hundred people, was a spur to the foolish pride of the two young Englishmen, who thought that they could now relinquish their scheme with out being laughed at. A second boat was prepared, and the next morning appointed for the experiment.

Deputations were sent to them from the magistrates, who strongly remonstrated against the guilty madness of the enterprise, but without effect. Next came some of the clergy to warn them against perdition, and to prophesy certain death; their efforts were equally unsuccessful; and on the appointed morning, they sallied forth, dressed in white waistcoats with ornaments, and slippers. They gave their money and watches to their servants; they knew, therefore, that there was a great chance of death. Mr. B. went to the boat with a heavy heart, and even said he would not go, and remonstrated with Lord M.; but his Lordship jumped into the boat, and said he would go alone, upon which poor Mr. B., unwilling to leave his friend, went in after him. They pushed off. They had each a long pole, with which they hoped to keep the boat clear of the rocks. On both shores stood an overcast multitude, some crying, all vociferating entreaties to desist, and not to rush into eternity. It was now too late; no human strength could have stopped the boat when once it had got into the rapid current. To the amazement of the trembling spectators, they went unhurt over the first breakers, and, rushing into the foaming torrent, evaded the first threatening angle. Life was then for a few seconds more in their power. They might have jumped on the rocks, from which they were not more than three or four feet distant. The people on the shore screamed out to them to do it; instead of which, elated with this momentary success, they huzzaned and waved their hats. Alas! blind, unfortunate youths! that salute was their last farewell to this world; they were just plunging into eternity. With the swiftness of an arrow they were carried to a tremendous vortex; their boat was instantly overset; they struggled for a short time against the roaring billows, swam even the space of two hundred yards on their backs, calling out for help and mercy. No help could be given. The distressed multitude gazed on them as they passed, and saw them swallowed up, never to appear again.
I did not hear this affecting narrative with a dry eye. The man who gave me the particulars of it, had been himself a witness of the whole and was much agitated on recounting it. He told me that not so much as a button of their waistcoat had been seen afterwards; and that two English gentlemen, who had come on purpose from England, had staid at Lauffenburg some weeks, endeavoring by every possible convenience to find the remains; but they had no success.

ALEXANDRIA.
SATURDAY, MARCH 22

William Findley, Esq. and Gen. Joseph Heister, have been put in nomination as candidates for the office of Governor, at the approaching election in Pennsylvania; the former by the "New School Democrats," and the latter by the "Independent Republicans." The Federal Republicans have not yet made any nomination. The election takes place in October next.

A letter from Liverpool of the 25th of January, observes,
"From a construction that has lately been put on the Treaty concluded in 1815, between the United States and Great Britain, it appears that goods exported in American ships, from this country, are only subject to a duty of one half per cent, instead of one per cent as has been paid, and I have taken measures to obtain a return of the amount of duty overcharged for the shipments I have made to the United States, in which I have but little doubt of succeeding."

LAW QUESTION.
To the gentlemen learned in Law.
By the new tariff it is provided that a drawback of the duties paid on importation shall be granted on all goods of the same be exported within 12 months from the date of importation, excepting goods imported in foreign vessels, from places where American vessels are not allowed to go and trade.
The Island of Bermuda is open by a permanent act of Parliament, (existing before the war and still existing) as a free port to American vessels, which are constantly clearing for and entering from that Island. — Are, or are not, therefore, goods imported from thence in foreign vessels entitled to drawback on exportation, agreeable to the above article in the new tariff law. If they are not, the above law would be a nullity and no foreign power would open its ports to the American trade, if no advantage were derived more than from practising a system of exclusion.
If the law, therefore, is in favour of drawbacks on goods thus situated being granted, and if the privilege is denied by the collector of any port, with or without the orders of the secretary of the Treasury, is the party thus aggrieved entitled to redress, and what mode is necessary to be resorted to, to obtain it? I shall be glad if any of your respectable body will solve this query, through the medium of this useful paper.

CIVIS.
NORFOLK, March 17.
Capt. Low of the scho. Strong, arrived here yesterday from Mirago, Hayti, informs that the exportation of corn from that part of the Island was prohibited, when he sailed, from apprehension of a society Flour at Port au Prince, was at 28 dollars. The schooner High Flyer, off and from Baltimore, had arrived at Port au Prince, Feb. 23, saw a British fleet of 19 sail, when in sight of Fort du Large, apparently bound to Jamaica, Feb. — saw a northern ship beating through the passage, between the Capes and Henegau.
Capt. L. further reports, that an epidemic prevailed at Port au Prince with which Pe ion had been seized, and that 10 to 20 of the indigenes and foreigners died daily. The commandant at Miragone, Col. Hogan, kept his troops perfectly tranquil. Gumer was still very troublesome to the indigenes, in the mountains of Hayti and their vicinity.

New-York, March 17.
It having been stated in several papers that the Hornet sloop of war, was about to be dispatched to England for the purpose of bringing home Mr. Adams — we are desired to mention that the report is incorrect. We understand that Daniel P. Cook, Esq. who goes on a special messenger, will embark from this city in a merchant vessel, and that Mr. Adams will return home in the same manner.

Hamburg, Jan. 8.
A new Dutch Consul has arrived at Algiers. The Dey, still incensed, at first declined recognizing him, on account of the hostilities committed by Admiral Von Capellan, in conjunction with Lord Exmouth; but as the Consul produced the usual presents, he was received without further objection.

From the Louisville [Ky.] Courier.
As some of the speculative theorists of Europe have wisely laid it down as an axiom, that men and animals degenerate in America; to assist them in their cogitations on Natural Philosophy, we give the following description of a gentleman of Jefferson county, Ky. and his riding poney.

Dimensions of the Gentleman.
Six feet 3 inches high, 5 feet round the breast, 5 feet 4 inches round the abdomen, 4 feet round the thigh; weight 380 pounds.

Dimensions of the Pony.
Six feet 5 inches high, 13 feet from the nose to the end of the tail, 9 feet 4 inches girth, 2 feet 10 inches length of head, 3 feet 10 inches round the joles, 2 feet round the hoof, 1 foot 4 1-2 inches round the pastern joint, 2 feet round the arm, 1 foot round the root of the tail.

SPOTS IN THE SUN.
From the Gazette de France, Dec. 3. The Rev. M. Stark, a cannon and astronomer of Augsburg, has observed in the sun a vast opening or cavity, 4 minutes 36 seconds from its Eastern and 15 minutes 7 seconds from its southern edge. In that cavity, the apparent diameter of which is three times larger than the real diameter of the earth, are seen two black billows or holes, separated from each other by a luminous space, and the largest of which terminates in a point at its upper extremity, and crenated at its lower. Between this vast apparent abyss and the eastern edge of the sun, there are several asperities, below which four small black spots are seen, and six above.

JUNIUS.—The newspapers declare that the author of the letters of Junius, is at length discovered. A work has just been published, which undertakes to prove to a demonstration, that those justly celebrated epistles were written by the accomplished Sir Philip Francis. If the evidence adduced be conclusive, it will finally terminate an enquiry which has so long agitated, and so much interested, the literary world.

JAMES KENNEDY SON,

30-322 LERS, KING STREET.
Have just received from LEE'S PATENT MEDICINE Store, No. 46 Maiden Lane, N. York
A FRESH SUPPLY

Of the following genuine Medicines.
For the prevention and cure of Bilious and Malignant Fevers, is recommended

Hahn's Anti-Bilious Pills

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings, in several parts of the West Indies, and the Southern Middle States, particularly in N. York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Petersburg, Richmond, Norfolk, Edenton, Wilmington, Charleston, and Savannah. The testimony of a number of persons at each of the above places can be adduced, who have reason to believe, that a timely use of his salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives, when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy, founded on mere assertion.

It is not, indeed, presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience, for believing that a dose of these Pills, taken once in every two weeks, during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventative; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases, their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate, and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation, and of every age. They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile & prevent its morbid secretions—to restore & amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which is so often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance—they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

HAMILTON'S WORM DESTROYING LOZENGES.

Which have cured an immense number of persons of both sexes, of every age, and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from worms, and from obstructions or foulness in their stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar title so commonly complained of, as operating with violence; on the contrary, a particular excellence of this remedy is its being mild to every age and perfectly inoffensive. It contains nothing but what is constitutionally innocent, and is also mild in its operation cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old, should no worms exist in the body; but will, without pain or griping, cleanse the stomach and bowels, of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms, and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

DESCRIPTION OF WORMS.

And the symptoms by which they are known:

Worms which infest the human body, are chiefly of four kinds, viz.—The Tænia, or large round worm; the Ascarides, or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitina, or short, flat, white worm; and lastly, the Tænia, or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long, and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food, and sometimes voracious; purging, with slimy & fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow fever, with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face heated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms, should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success, in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent the vomiting and purging of chills—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys the hands of the laboring part of our citizens.

is remedy known, and has res alth and strength a great number.
in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.
Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

Patent Columbian Oil.

In respect to which the Proprietor serves—

THE great sales of the Columbian Oil, since it has been brought before the public, prove its intrinsic value, and is a pleasing foreboding of what we have to expect from its more extensive circulation.

Many interesting certificates might be furnished, testifying to the great value of the Columbian Oil, but we have preferred giving but few, wishing to rest more on the merits of the medicine, than on the effect produced by certificates from a source however respectable.

The following are among the complaints in which the Columbian Oil has been found very efficacious, viz. rheumatism, consumption, gout, pains in any part of the body, but more particularly of the back and breast; asthma, phthisis, influenza, colds, coughs, whooping cough, diseases of the eye and eye lids, toothache, ear ache, and deafness, cholera, cramps, external and internal bruises, sprains and flesh wounds, old sores, ulcers, felons, scalds, burns, mumps, erysipels, or flux, crop, quincy, diarrhoea or lax, summer complaint of children, indigestion, loss of appetite, nervous debility, piles, mercurial diseases, especially in those cases where the system has been charged with mercury for some considerable time, and in those excruciating pains subsequent to its too great use and exposure. Herpes, or diseases of the skin, such as ring worms, tetter, scald head, &c. stiffness of joints and limbs, palsy, ague and fever, cholera morbus, gravel, gleet, obstructed urine, scurvy, and in almost all cases of a general or local nature.

We are aware that in recommending medicine in so many diseases, the public especially those who have not used the Oil, may be induced to question its virtues, but a disposition of this nature will soon be dissipated, when they are informed that a great proportion of the diseases are owing to the same general cause. And in those cases where the disease differs materially in their nature, the effects produced are nearly the same, though not on the same principle.

A supply of the above just received and for sale by RICHARD H. LITTLE, Druggist, King street.
